Boosting Belonging

Build a Culture of Everyday Inclusion

Belonging is a fundamental human need. But research shows it's more than a feeling - it's good for business. High levels of belonging are linked to significant increases in engagement, retention, and job performance.

Consider the costs of disconnection. Feeling alone or excluded can cause us to shut down, hold back, or pull away. But belonging is a powerful energizing force, and with intention, any team can activate it.

This collaborative, engaging session explores why belonging matters and how it is built or broken in everyday interactions. Working together, participants will:

- Reflect on what belonging feels like and how it shows up in the workplace.
- Identify the critical few behaviors for building and sustaining belonging.
- Commit to a 'micro mission' that reinforces belonging in a relevant way every day.
